April 11, 2008- The management consulting firm, Strategic Asset Management Inc. (SAMI) is now offering comprehensive classroom based training courses to individuals and companies in Bahrain through their newly formed entity, SAMI Knowledge Operations (www.samiknowledgeoperations.com).

The SAMI Knowledge Operations course offerings will provide quality training to participants interested in the management, methods and processes of industrial plant operations. Each Knowledge Operations course offering provides participants with a complete and comprehensive training program involving small group, hands on interaction with the course instructor and course participants. Course formats include a combination of lecture, individual activity, group exercise, and real world application examples giving participants the in-depth knowledge and skills necessary to excel within their respective professional roles.

After years of implementing and refining methods through client projects SAMI is ready to share our knowledge and experience through training programs. The SAMI Knowledge Operations learning courses provide companies with the skills and training to master best practices across their organization. Brad Peterson, President of SAMI said, "We are committed to providing quality training through our vast client experience and refined methods and processes. We have the real world success stories to back up our training modules and we know that every individual that participates in our courses will come away with a proven set of tools that will become useful and beneficial in their everyday roles."

Course dates have been scheduled for July, August, October and December in Bahrain for the Planning and Scheduling for Maintenance and Managing the Maintenance Shutdown courses.
